

HAMILTON WILL TELL OF FUNDS

Life Committee Wants To Know All About That Yellow Dog Fund Immediately.

TO DEMAND AN ITEMIZED ACCOUNT

Former Disburser Of The Insurance Money Will Be Requested To Be Explicit In His Statements.

[Special to The Gazette.]

New York, March 8.—The trustees of the New York Life Insurance company held a special meeting Wednesday and completed plans for the appearance of representatives of the company at the legislative hearing at Albany on Friday.

The trustees also entered into a discussion of what the company should do, now that Andrew Hamilton has returned. It was agreed that the Fowler investigating committee should take whatever action in regard to Hamilton is deemed necessary in the interest of the company.

John McCall, secretary of the New York Life, was at the meeting. He is the only officer of the company who has seen Hamilton since his return from Europe. What passed between the two men at their brief conference young Mr. McCall did not feel at liberty to reveal.

It can be stated authoritatively, however, that Hamilton has no present intention of "squealing" upon the legislators at Albany and at the capital of other states who were the beneficiaries of the "yellow dog" funds he disbursed.

His resolution to protect the men who took money from him to promote and defeat insurance legislation is said to be as firm as ever, but this determination may be dissipated, however, when the Fowler investigating committee takes hold of the former legislative agent.

Mutt-Tell Three Things.

It is the purpose of the committee to make plain to him that no accounting of the $1,347,000 given to him by the New York Life will be accepted or recognized unless he shows specifically these things:

1. The names of the persons to whom he paid money.

2. The amounts paid to each person and the date of payment.

3. The specific purpose for which every payment was made.

Hiram C. Steele, acting chairman of the Fowler committee, and one of the counsel, ex-Judge William A. Keener, had a long conference as to the plan to be pursued in dealing with Hamilton. It is the present purpose to send Hamilton a communication at once asking him to appear before the committee and make an exhaustive statement of his disbursements. If the committee promises not to reveal the names of the men who accepted money from him, it is thought Hamilton can be induced to tell all.

He will also be questioned as to the trustees of the company who were cognizant all along of the peculiar financial relations existing between him and the New York Life. There are five of these men, according to the best information, and they sanctioned the payments made by McCall to Hamilton.

Hamilton is not expected to come to this city from his Albany home until next Monday. John C. McCall said that the "Judge" was still in ill health and would require a few days' rest at his home.

Beloit Carriage Maker Angry at Janesville Council for Manner of Awarding Contract.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Beloit, Wis., March 8.—E. Kinsley, one of the carriage-makers who submitted bids on the plans and specifications for the new police patrol wagon to be built for the city of Janesville, is wroth over the award of the contract. He alleges that the understanding was that the lowest bidder would receive the work, but when the Bower City Common Council passed on the matter the contract was given to the Janesville Carriage company on a bid of $460, while his bid, that of the Beloit carriage company, was of an even $400. Mr. Kinsley will doubtless appear before the council and "give them a piece of his mind." He is a thoroughly reliable business man and the veteran carriage-maker of this portion of the country.

BULLET FROM SKIES FELS A SOLDIER

Spent Missile Traveled Over Woods and Happened to Fall on Skull of Private.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Berlin, March 8.—A remarkable accident is reported from the little garrison town of Ortelburg. A private soldier was walking in broad daylight on the outskirts of the town when he suddenly fell to the ground. Persons who came to his assistance found that he had been struck by a rifle bullet, though no one including the wounded man himself, had heard or seen a shot fired. Investigations resulted in the discovery that long range firing exercises had been going on at the time at the garrison range three miles away, and that a gun had accidentally gone off. The bullet from this rifle had passed over a wood, and in dropping on the other side from a considerable height had retained sufficient velocity to inflict a critical wound.

CANADA PARLIAMENT TO REVISE TARIFF

Duties Principal Article on Calendar of Law-Making Body Which Opened Today.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Ottawa, Ont., March 8.—Parliament opened this afternoon with the usual ceremonies. The session promises to be an interesting as well as a protracted one. The principal work of the session, as is well known, will be tariff revision.

Canada's present tariff went into effect in 1897, when the Liberal party came into power. It made no radical change in the fiscal policy, and the process was one of an adjustment of items rather than the adoption of any new system. Canada's aggregate foreign trade for that year was $257,000,000. For the fiscal year 1905 it was $470,000,000, an increase of eighty-three per cent. In view of these figures the proposed revision of the tariff is not likely to involve sweeping changes in duties. Apparently there is no ground for fear that the national prosperity may be disturbed by the dislocation of an important part of the industrial and commercial machinery. Still the need of some reasonable and beneficial adjustment of particular rates is generally recognized, and the recent investigations of the tariff commission will be used as a basis for such an adjustment. Desires the clamor for higher duties, the present indications are that the changes to be made in the tariff will not be generally toward a greater degree of protection than now obtains in the Dominion.

In addition to the tariff the session is expected to give its attention to a stringent measure to prevent usury, a law to bring about a better observance of the Sabbath, insurance legislation and several other matters of lesser importance.

CANADA HAS SUIT AGAINST ONTARIO

Province Owns Lands, Dominion Has Managed Them; Now Who Pays for Improvements?

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Toronto, Ont., March 8.—The suit of the Dominion government against the Ontario government for a claim for $1,362,935.50 came up for hearing today in the Exchequer Court of Canada. The claim is made against the Ontario government for the repayment of certain annuities and other sums paid by the Dominion to the Saulteaux Indians under the terms of a treaty concluded in 1873. In that year the Crown purchased 47,000 square miles of land from the Saulteaux tribe of the Ojibway Indians and settled annuities upon the chiefs. In 1873 the land was made over to the Province of Ontario. Now the Dominion asks that Ontario repay the amount it spent on the Indians and improving the land. The Province in reply says that the Dominion government made the treaty and therefore should carry out the conditions.

COURT REVIEW OF RAIL RATES

The Senators Still Insist On The Amending Of The Dolliver Hepburn Measure.

COMMISSION MUST HAVE POWER

Friends Of The Bill Are Willing To Concede The Right To Bring Suit Without Granting Many Details.

Washington, March 8.—The railway rate bill situation developed a new phase Wednesday during the debate in the senate, when considerable difference of opinion was shown in the remarks of Senator Clapp, who represents the Republicans opposed to any amendment of the Dolliver-Hepburn measure, and the comments of Senators Bailey and Tillman, who are believed to represent the solid Democratic minority. Senators Aldrich, Foraker, Crane and other Republicans who are seeking to amend the bill so as to provide for a sweeping review by the courts took the position that the friends of the measure are divided and that the bill will not be accepted in its present form. They even declared that when the vote is taken they will have supporters enough to adopt a court review feature.

Doubts Power of Congress. The important debate followed set speeches by Senator Scott, who opposed the measure, and Senator Clapp, who, of course, defended it against all attacks. In reply to a question by Mr. Tillman, Mr. Clapp expressed doubt as to the power of congress to legislate so as to enforce the penalties provided by the bill pending a review of any given finding by any federal court.

Mr. Tillman and Mr. Bailey took sharp issue with this statement. Mr. Bailey contended that congress can legislate so as to maintain the interstate commerce commission's rate until the final order of the court is issued and to prevent interlocutory orders suspending such rates. He held that if this was not true the passage of the bill represented only so much time lost. Mr. Tillman expressed the opinion that the issue is a vital one and declared that if an order of the interstate commerce commission is not to be maintained until a final judicial settlement in a case is reached it will be necessary to reform the courts.

Specific Power for Courts. Under the leadership of Senator Bailey the Democratic members of the interstate commerce committee will propose to amend the Hepburn bill so as to provide not for court review, as that term has come to be understood in its broader sense, but for specific power for courts.

ELEVATOR TRUST IS TOLD TO TOE MARK PROMPTLY

Thirty-One Concerns Are Alleged To Have Violated The Anti-Trust Law.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Washington, March 8.—Suit has been filed in the federal court in San Francisco against thirty-one elevator concerns, including the Otis Elevator company, on the charge of violating the anti-trust law. Attorney General Moody, on learning of filing of suit, made the following statement: "The United States attorney for the northern district of California, under instructions from the attorney general, has filed in the United States Circuit court for the ninth circuit a bill of complaint against the Otis Elevator company and twenty-seven other companies and three individuals engaged in the elevator business, charging them with violation of the Sherman anti-trust law. The companies named as defendants comprise the principal elevator companies of the United States.

Gist of the Charges. "It is charged that these companies make and sell at least 80 per cent of all the elevators used west of the Rocky mountains, and that they have entered into a combination among themselves to control and enhance the prices at which elevators are sold, that in order to make the combination effective the Otis Elevator company has acquired the whole or a majority interest in the business of all the other defendants, although said defendants are still being operated as apparently separate and independent concerns, that when an inquiry is received by any of the defendants it is immediately referred to the Otis Elevator company, and if there is no outside competition, that company designates the concern which is to set the business, fixes an excessive and exorbitant price to be charged, and directs the other companies to submit bids higher than the bid of the company which has been designated to receive the contract.

"If outside competition appears one of these subsidiary companies is directed to take the contract at a loss, in order to freeze out the competitors. "The bill prays that the defendants be perpetually enjoined from carrying out their illegal combination and from further agreeing and combining together to control the trade and commerce in elevators."

Despite the Gazette's recent efforts to persuade a certain coterie of Spanish Seniors that all of Janesville's easy money is going into lead and zinc mine ventures, Mexican rubber, etc.
et cetera, and that there is none to spare
for admission tickets to the bull fights, the droll old rascals refuse to abandon the Bower City and its people
as the special objects of their solicitude or to scratch their names from the route cards of their laboriously written epistles. Albert H.
Bennison of the firm of Bennison & Lane is the latest to have his genealogical tree shaken in the hope (to attempt a doubtful metaphor) that some ripe plums might come tumbling across the sea. The letter reached Mr. Bennison on Tuesday and after scanning its contents with swift-dawning comprehension, he turned it over to the Gazette office. It is an improvement over the previous ones that have reached certain people in the city in that it is written in English. But what English! Contemplando:

Nobility of Proposition.
Madrid 18 of February of 1906
Mr. A. Bennison.

My dear Sir,
Being placed in a very grave situation and I cannot resolve myself
a great struggle that surrounds me
I take the liberty to write to you to make you a proposition that for his character and nobleness of opinion I hope you accept although I am knowing to you when I consider that my relative you will remember our relationship.

"Death Father" a Russian.
The motive to write to you with preference although I have not had the honor to know you it is because my death mother although the differences that was the cause of not have connection with father's family (differences because my mother was married with my death father long years ago
who was Russian) during my mother and I remember she always speak of your honesty and nobleness of opinion that you have and as I remember all these good things in this wanted danger and motives that I confide in your discretion and honesty and I hope you will never reveal nothing referent to this letter although you will not accept this proposition I will tell you all that surround me thinking that you are learn enough to know all I reveal you my situation in this important letter of which depend the salvation of a great fortune that is the unique future of a pretty girl of 14 years of age that is alone in this World without protection of anybody because my good wife death at the same time, that born my dear unfortunate daughter.

A Soldier of the Czar.
Being Colonel of general staff of Russia at the orders of the general
Mr. Kuropatkin in the conflict of passions Russian-Japanese in Manchuria
I receive the important order to come to Europe to buy arms and amunitions of war all those things I must send with very secret to several points of Manchuria where of the same manner would be distributed to different points of transaction, when I was ready they gave me some instructions and full authority for my journey to Europe that I know because I had been aggregate military of Russia in several Consulate and I know several languages and when I had ready my inquest I start for Europe with my daughter and disembark in London
where I fear to be expiate for the agents of the Japan Consul, I took precautions I place my fortune that amount at the sum of 150,000 pound sterling in a sure English Bank of manner that I could take it by which
and when I like, I place it in cheques payable to the bearer of the said sum of 150,000 pounds sterling I place the cheques in a secret drawer that I make in one of my trunks and I am sure that never can be discovered the secret drawer although the examine the trunks well.

Most Unfavorable Mishap.
After I took this important precaution, I began to fulfill the orders of my chief. I start for Spain and in Madrid I placed my dear daughter in a School for to go alone in my journey

to the arms' factory of Obendorf Wienberg and Elbar and when I return to Madrid to see my dear daughter and when I was very glad of my conduct to have my goods arms I was surprised by the Spanish police for a accusation of the Japan Consul in this City and when they came to take me to prison I was so irritate that I makes a very unfavorable struggle and I was wound very grave on the breast at once all thought I was death.

Now with the terrible revolution
that in Russia are the Czar government tell the infamous calumny that I am a conspirator of the Czar and that I direct the revolution from here Spain and Switzerland so that the Russian Consul in Madrid do not come to visit me and he make the agents to watch me constantly.

Regarded As Chum of Gorky.
I am nearly death because I have the shot in the breast and I am lock for the Spanish authorities because I wound to a agent, I am abandoned and pursue for the Russian authorities because they think I am a revolutionary of the famous Russian writer
Mr. Gorky and the priest Mr. Gapon
I have imagined a plan for to save my fortune saving my dear daughter of the misery and the most terrible abandonment if you accept my proposition and you like to protect my dear daughter.

Outlines His Plan.
My plan is as follows: as the trunk
in which is the secret drawer that contains the cheques it appears to have any value as this trunk and other two mine also although they are not to my disposition it is very easy and not dear to recover them of the tribunal as they seize them at the time to make me prisoner, I am very glad because as they are of the tribunal they are very kept meantime during you and I are in discussion and as the chaplain of this prison is a very good man and he apiece me, he visit me every day he is extremely caritative and he is compassionate of my position and abandonment of my dear daughter thinking we are poor
he is very share to favour us with his protection and you can write me
the rectitude, scrupulosity of conscience of this Saint chaplain make indispensable that he ignore the existence of my fortune because if he knows it he would think I was culpable and we would retire his protection, protection that is indispensable for us for investiture of chaplain he will be well attended in the Tribunal
and as I am very watch for the Russian and Japanese Consul it is impossible that any person can come to see me because they will be expiated as I am, so your presence here is impossible to be tranquil you and my dear daughter after, ignoring this venerate chaplain the essential of our secret he will serve to realize my plan recovering unwittingly my trunks that contain the valid cheques without rise suspicion of anybody and he will take all to your house where with your protection will be happy my dear daughter that very soon will be orphan.

Offers Tempting Reward.
As you see all that I solicit from you to realize this plan you will never be endanger moral not materially
if you promise me to be protector
and good father for my dear daughter to fulfill the paternal mission and to give the help moral and material
than the good chaplain could want remove the seizure of my luggage to recover my fortune to take all with my daughter to your house I will submit you the fourth part of my fortune that is 27,500 pounds sterling and the interest that all my fortune, produce with the new place that you like during the minority of my daughter or when she will unite in marriage.

Wants An Early Reply.
As I am very grave and it could be easy to die before to realize my plan to save my fortune and well being of my dear daughter if you will protect here it would be convenient when you receive this letter and meditated well
if you accept my proposition please write me by return mail remember that I am very watch and that the chaplain Mr. Rogelio Morante only will know that you are my relative and compassionate of my situation
you will protect my daughter I beg you this and to take the precaution
when you write me in two covers the inside with the letter for me well closed with my name and the exterior
copying exactly this enclosed card.

he had been receiving treatment since the terrible catastrophe, on Tuesday of this week. He had recovered sufficiently to walk down stairs and out to the carriage which was waiting to convey him and the faithful wife, who had been at the bedside since the accident, to the depot. They took a train for Baraboo. While Mr. Peck has been improving rapidly during the past few days it is doubtful whether he will be in condition for any kind of work for some weeks. He does not yet recall clearly the events that transpired just before the collision.

EVANSVILLE TO GET A CATHOLIC CHURCH

Archbishop S. G. Messmer Has Granted Permission. Janesville Priests to Say Mass.

[Special to the Gazette.]
Evansville, March 8.—That Evansville is to have a Catholic church is no more a probability but a certainty.
A number of prominent Catholics have secured permission from the archbishop of this diocese, Rev. S. G.
Messmer of Milwaukee, to organize a congregation of St. Paul and a subscription list is being circulated with encouraging results. The directors intend having mass said in one of the halls here in a few weeks. A priest will be supplied from Janesville or Madison. Evansville citizens should welcome the new society, as it will benefit the city in many ways.

IT IS FOR LADIES, TOO.

They Can Stop Their Hair Falling Out
With Herpicide.

Ladies who have thin hair and whose hair is falling out, can prevent the hair falling out, and thicken the growth, with Newbro's "Herpicide." Besides, Herpicide
is one of the most agreeable hair dressing there is. Herpicide kills the draught germ that eats the hair out at the root. After the germ is destroyed, the root will shoot up, and the hair grow
long as ever. Even a sample will convince any lady, that Newbro's Herpicide
is an indispensable toilet requisite.
It contains no oil or grease, it will not stain or dye. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

Other Roads.
All members of the Oklahoma supreme bench have returned their railroad transportation and will hereafter pay fare. As the action of the judges followed so closely their conference with President Roosevelt, it might be concluded that the return of the passes was a result of the conference. From an official source it was also learned today that Governor Frank Frantz recently returned his Rock Island pass. Judge Luman P.
Parker, the newly appointed Indian Territory judge, has also returned his pass. The Oklahoman, Oklahoma City.

Hearings have been held before the committee on railroads of the Massachusetts legislature upon two bills introduced by Senator Reed on the subject of passes. The first prohibits the issue of free passes by a railroad to any but its directors, or to employees whose principal business is with the road. The second bill requires the filing with the railroad commission of a list of persons whose principal business is not with the employing road.

During 1905 the production in this country of all kinds of rails weighing under forty-five pounds to the yard shows a decrease of 55,303 tons
as compared with 1904; but the production of rails weighing forty-five pounds and less than eighty-five pounds, shows an increase of 275,947 tons in 1905 over 1904. The great increase in the weight of rails in 1905 as compared with 1904 was, however, in sections weighing eighty-five pounds and over, in which the increase amounted to 873,902 tons.

DO AWAY WITH FOOD ADULTERATION

The People Have a Right to Know
What They Are Eating.
Too great attention cannot be given to the food we eat. The health of our families depends on this food.
Are we to submit to the atrocities of the food adulterators? No. We must have laws to protect us and those laws must be enforced.

It is of interest to note that there is at least one article of food about which we can know everything. This is Malta-Vita, popularly called "The Perfect Food," the pure, all-grain product, in which every element of food necessary to the proper nutrition
of the human body is found.
In the manufacture of Malta-Vita
the whole of the wheat is thoroughly cleaned; cooked in the purity of absolute cleanliness and then mixed with the finest malt-extract made from specially selected barley. The cooking and steaming of the wheat gelatinizes
the starch and the malt extract, a powerful digestive agent, convert this starch into maltose or malt sugar, in which Malta-Vita is very rich. Maltose is of great food value, sweetens the wheat sufficiently to make unnecessary the use of any foreign sweetening agent and the weakest stomach digests and assimilates
it without effort. Rolled into waterlike flakes and baked under intense heat, Malta-Vita comes from the ovens crisp and brown, positively the most delicious food in the world. All grocers. 10 cents.

PILES

Can Be Cured and We Can Prove It.

Sample Package Free—Prove It Yourself.

When we say that we can cure Piles, we mean just what we say—nothing more, nothing less. We say it because we know it and stand ready to prove it to you or to any other person. Just as we have said it and proved it to thousands already.
It is because of these thousands that we have cured that we are able to say this.
We have done our part in calling your attention to this fact and it is up to you to disprove it. And we offer you the means of doing so, knowing that you can't and that when you try our Pyramid Pile Cure you will be so well pleased with it that you will go straight to your druggist
and get a box of it.

And more than that, if at any time in the future any person tells you as you have told so many yourself, that they are suffering the agonies of the damned from piles, you will not rest until he or she has bought and is using a box and getting the same relief and cure that you got. We have seen it done.
Here, for instance, is a sample of what a sample did and shows very conclusively that we are dealing in cold, hard facts and not empty assertions. A person who gets a sample never fails to buy.
Mr. John Byrne of 2306 2nd Ave.,
New York City, writing under date of Jan. 17th, 1906, says: "I received the sample and used it right away.
I got so much relief from it after 20 years suffering that I thought a 50 cent box. The almost unbearable pain is almost gone and my fistula has almost disappeared. I had given up all hope of ever being cured. I assure you, gentlemen, I will use every effort to make any of my friends try them; as I can guarantee they are a sure cure."

Pyramid Pile Cure is for sale at every druggist for 50 cents a box
and it is cheap at ten times the price
to any one who needs it.

—FORTY YEARS AGO—

Janesville Daily Gazette, Thursday, March 8, 1866.—Y. M. A.—At a meeting of the Young Men's Association Tuesday evening, March 6th, the following officers were elected for the ensuing two months: President, A. S. Douglass; Vice President, P. T. Enright; Recording Secretary, H. F. Hobart; Corresponding Secretary, Wm. Smith; Treasurer, E. F. Welch; Marshal, W. R. Pollans.

The Appeal to the People.
The president closes his message vetoing the Freedmen's Bureau Bill, with the hope that such a measure will not be enacted into law, "unless upon deliberate consideration of the people it shall receive the sanction of an enlightened public judgment." So far, his appeal to the people in all the States who voted for him as Vice-President has been decided, overwhelmingly against him. The legislatures of Maine, Massachusetts, Ohio, Wisconsin, Missouri, Iowa, Indiana, Minnesota, California and Nevada have condemned it. Not a Union paper in Ohio supports the veto—not a paper in Wisconsin, except the Madison Capitol, endorses it. Not a prominent Union paper in any of the large cities defends it except the New York Times and Post. Public meetings have been held everywhere to manifest the emphatic disapproval of the people on the President's course, not only relative to the veto, but upon the general issue which he has made.

With Congress regarding the restoration of the States lately in armed rebellion for destruction of the government. Everywhere the verdict has been almost unanimously against him. The enlightened public judgment to which he has appealed, is now being pronounced, and it is only among those of his old supporters who are of who desire to be office holders, that he gets aid and comfort. The immense patronage of this government is always sufficient to induce a certain set of weak ones whose affinity for place is much stronger than for principle, to him who has the leaves and fishes at his disposal. A class that Tom Corwin used to describe as those who are "willing to feed from the blown remnants that fall from the executive patronage," will always be found ready to worship at the shrine of power. But the great majority of people are firm and unshaken in their adhesion to principle, and are daily given such responses to Mr. Johnson's approval upon them as cannot fail to convince him of the great error he has committed. It is not yet too late to retrace his steps, and the sooner he does it, the better for himself and the country. In this country parties rapidly crystallize and it things go on in Washington as they have been doing for the past two weeks, the breach will become wider. It not absolutely irreconcilable. Let the President heed the voice of the tribunal to which he has appealed, and all may yet be well.

MILWAUKEE MINISTER MAKES A STATEMENT

Says Excessive Playing of Bridge Whist is Detrimental to the Mind

Plain treatment of the subject of bridge whist, from the pulpit of one of the most fashionable churches in Milwaukee to a parish which is composed largely of prominent society people, with whom the prevailing craze for card playing finds one of its strongest natural centers, marked the opening of the Lenten season Sunday and caused a considerable comment. At St. Paul's church, the Rev. William Austin Smith took "Cards on Lent" as the subject for his morning sermon and as a result of his fearless trespass upon the dangerous ground a number of his parishioners have pledged themselves to forego whist parties during the Lenten season.

Declaring that the present absorption in cards is destroying the art of conversation and that it is engrossing the mind so that there is no time or room for the really vital things of life, Mr. Smith made a plea to his people to use all their influence and social position to give Milwaukee a cardless Lent. In his arraignment of the bridge whist craze, he declared that it is destroying Christian courtesy, that it has become a serious

A highly ornamental annual of unusually rapid growth, forming regular pyramids from two to three feet in height, having a cypress-like appearance. The seed germinates quickly. Sow indoors in April and plant out in May, or sow in open ground about May 1st. Plants do best in a sunny exposure in sandy soil, about two feet apart. "Everything is impossible until we see a success." Your own business is probably bigger now than you thought "possible" before you became a shrewd (which means a "large") advertiser.

Senator Spooner was called upon to settle the Isle of Pines dispute, and he settled it.

Chicago suffered from a cloud of smoke and so did St. Louis all day yesterday. Janesville was also dark but no one thought of smoke.

This question of Lenten card playing should be a subject for some sermons during the period of fasting and prayer.

Men who received immunity on promise to keep out of politics should remember their promise even though it was not made personally but through their attorney. The statute of limitations is not up in three years by a good deal.

When the "progressives" argue that our system of tariff is an injury to the farmers, the democrats who, after years of hard work, failed to make the farmers believe it, are standing back laughing in their sleeves, says the Cedar Falls Gazette. The farmers are too busy raking in the shekels from the good republican times to worry much about the tariff hurting them.

CANADA'S DEFEAT OF RECIPROCIITY.

The Canadian Tariff Commission, now in session at Quebec, reflects the keenest provincial spirit and the disposition of Canadian manufacturers to shape the new Canadian Tariff to turn the laugh on to Mr. Ross and other gentlemen who have talked for Canadian reciprocity; for it is evident that neither the farmers nor the manufacturers of Canada are ready for any form of reciprocity that would give anything to the United States in exchange for the heavy increase over January's shipments in preceding years, being more than twice the size of the corresponding movement in 1905. This increase is, no doubt, in part due to the effort of affected industries to procure unusually large supplies of coal in order to safeguard their interests in the event of a general strike.

Grain receipts at Boston during January amounted to 4,124,604 bushels; at New York, 13,047,835 bushels; at Philadelphia, 7,204,751 bushels; at Baltimore, 9,432,194 bushels; at New Orleans, 8,482,075 bushels; and at San Francisco, 1,671,529 bushels, making a total at these six markets of 43,902,138 bushels, as compared with 27,655,459 bushels received during January, 1905. All markets showed again with the exception of San Francisco, the increase at Baltimore being the greatest, amounting to nearly 6 million bushels.

The cotton brought into sight during the month of January amounted to 904,183 bales, over 50,000 bales less than in January, 1905, and more than 170,000 bales less than in January, 1904. It was also the lightest movement for any month of the current season. During the five months ending January 31, 1906, the amount of cotton brought into sight was 7,907,596 bales, as compared with 9,888,357 bales during similar months in 1904-5 and 9,009,622 bales in 1903-4, while the net overland movement for the same months was 517,827 bales in 1905-6, 629,077 bales in 1904-5, and 616,861 bales in 1903-4. Of the American spinners' takings for the first five months of the current season, which amounted to 2,655,087 bales, 1,482,806 bales went to northern mills and 1,152,831 bales to southern mills. During the corresponding months of 1904-5 similar takings totaled 2,505,801 bales, of which 1,383,754 bales were consigned to northern mills and 1,122,047 bales to southern mills.

Receipts of cotton at leading interior towns from September 1, 1905, to January 26, 1906, reached a total of 288,750 bales, as compared with 355,029 bales received during the corresponding period of 1904-5 and 439,638 bales in 1903-4. Cities receiving over 10,000 bales during the first five months of the current season were Houston, Tex., 146,067 bales; Memphis, Tenn., 80,851 bales; St. Louis, Mo., 52,034 bales; Augusta, Ga., 14,700 bales; and Little Rock, Ark., 14,471 bales.

Cotton receipts at United States ports from September 1, 1905, to January 31, 1906, amounted to 5,702,805 bales, of which 3,381,710 bales were received at Gulf ports and 2,321,095 bales at Atlantic ports. The ports receiving over a million bales were: Galveston, 1,309,555 bales; Savannah, 1,144,980 bales; and New Orleans, 1,039,988 bales. The receipts of cotton at all ports during the corresponding period of 1904-5 were 6,670,286 bales, and in 1903-4, 5,997,542 bales.

Shipments of anthracite coal during January from eastern producing regions reached a total of 5,453,084 tons, more than a million tons greater than shipments for January, 1905, or January, 1904, and only a little over 500,000 tons below the exceptionally large movement in January, 1903. In fact, the January, 1906, shipments have been exceeded in only four months during the past six years.

Coke production at Connellsville during the first four weeks of January amounted to 1,137,000 tons, exceeding that for the first four weeks of January, 1905, by over 100,000 tons, and that for the first four weeks of January, 1904, by nearly 200,000 tons. This production was larger than that which occurred during the first four weeks in any of the three preceding years, and the cars required to handle it numbered 57,072, compared with 49,352 employed during the first four weeks of January, 1905, and 39,368 in January, 1904. Of the shipments for the first four weeks of 1906, 17,433 cars were destined to Pittsburgh, and the river, 32,033 cars to points west of Pittsburgh, and 8,206 cars to points east of Connellsville. Of the ovens employed in manufacturing coke in the vicinity of Connellsville less than one-half of 1 per cent were idle during the first four weeks of January, 1906.

The run from wells in petroleum pipe line territory during January reached a total of 3,166,983.41 barrels, while other receipts aggregated 3,809,190.83 barrels. Regular deliveries during the same period were 3,351,916.54 barrels and other deliveries 3,478,955.57 barrels. During January, 1906, runs from wells amounted to 3,743,001.13 barrels; other receipts, 3,065,995.25 barrels; regular deliveries, 3,927,945.71 barrels; and other deliveries, 2,950,519.26 barrels.

INTERNAL TRADE.

Internal trade movements for January showed in the aggregate a decided improvement over those for January, 1905, this being particularly true with regard to the receipts and shipments of live stock, grain and coal.

According to reports received by the Department of Commerce and Labor through its Bureau of Statistics, 3,652,254 head of live stock were received at six important markets during January. This was 163,438 head more than in January, 1905, and 375,134 head more than in January, 1904. Of the total, 1,569,314 head were received at Chicago, 671,533 at Kansas City, 446,395 at Omaha, 415,614 at St. Louis, 322,580 at St. Joseph, and 183,763 at St. Paul. Although there was a slight decrease in the receipts both at Chicago and St. Paul, it was more than offset by the increase at the other four markets. The number of hogs received at these markets during January, 1906, was 1,915,656, sheep, 880,557; cattle, 755,131; horses and mules, 61,613, and calves, 36,297. As compared with January, 1905, there was an increase in the receipts of cattle, calves, sheep, horses and mules, and a slight decrease in the receipts of hogs.

Shipments of live stock from Chicago during January amounted to 439,201 head; Kansas City, 136,402; Omaha, 58,420; St. Louis, 113,546; St. Joseph, 25,079, and St. Paul, 33,011, making a total of 809,450 head, compared with 695,460 head shipped from these markets during January, 1905, and 607,981 head during January, 1904. Compared with January, 1905, there was an increase in the shipments from all of the markets named.

An indication of the increased demands upon the railroads by heavier live stock movements is the fact that over 5,000 more cars were required to handle January's receipts at these markets in 1906 than in 1905. Stocks of meat on hand January 31 at five important interior markets amounted to 255,498,487 pounds, compared with 222,622,031 pounds on the corresponding date in 1905, and 236,580,199 pounds on January 31, 1904. Of the supply for January 31, 1906, Chicago had 114,336,945 pounds; Kansas City, 56,234,500 pounds; Omaha, 31,040,280 pounds; St. Joseph, 23,314,796 pounds; and Milwaukee, 24,571,985 pounds.

At fourteen primary grain markets the receipts of grain during January aggregated 71,308,914 bushels—over 17 million bushels in excess of those in January, 1905, and 9 million bushels more than in January, 1904. Of the fourteen markets—Chicago, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Detroit, Duluth, Kansas City, Little Rock, Louisville, Milwaukee, Minneapolis, Omaha, Peoria, St. Louis and Toledo—only Cleveland, Louisville and Toledo sustained losses as compared with the receipts of January, 1905. The grain shipments from these cities during January, 1906, totaled 47,432,490 bushels, compared with 36,202,062 bushels in January, 1905, and 35,363,812 bushels in January, 1904. The increase in both the receipts and shipments was due largely to greatly increased arrivals and withdrawals of oats, although the movements of wheat, corn, barley, and rye all showed improvement when compared with like receipts and shipments in the preceding year. Oat arrivals at these markets during January amounted to 19,668,983 bushels, a gain of over 9 million bushels when compared with similar movements in 1905, while by a like comparison shipments which totaled 13,503,424 bushels presented an increase of nearly 5 million bushels.

Wheat receipts at the four spring wheat markets of Minneapolis, Milwaukee, Duluth and Chicago, from August 1, 1905, to January 31, 1906, reached a total of 118,339,272 bushels, compared with 106,357,442 bushels received during the corresponding months in 1904-5, and 111,111,383 bushels in 1903-4. Of the movements for the present season, Minneapolis received 64,203,310 bushels, Duluth 31,132,020 bushels, Chicago 17,530,129 bushels, and Milwaukee 5,423,750 bushels. At the winter wheat market of Toledo, wheat receipts from July 1 to January 31 totaled 4,287,700 bushels; at St. Louis, 17,099,000 bushels; at Detroit, 1,743,347 bushels; and at Kansas City, 32,272,000 bushels, making a total of 55,403,047 bushels in contrast with 47,353,477 bushels received during the corresponding period in 1904-5, and 57,171,408 bushels in 1903-4.

The east-bound movement of grain from Chicago and Chicago points during January aggregated 14,075,000 bushels, nearly 3 million bushels more than during January, 1905, and over 4 million bushels more than in January, 1904. East-bound flour shipments from these points totaled 484,523 bushels in January, 1906, 475,342 barrels in January, 1905, and 740,825 barrels in January, 1904. Shipments of domestic freight on the Great Lakes during January reached a total of 328,504 net tons, more than 80,000 tons in excess of January, 1905, or 1904, while the increase over January, 1903, was more than 140,000 tons. Of January, 1906, shipments, 15,507 tons were flour, 35,201 tons grain and flaxseed, 118,910 tons coal, 18,383 tons ore and minerals, 43,779 tons lumber and logs, and 94,564 tons unclassified freight. Shipments of coal showed a remarkably States for the whole lot which the Canadians want to take, says the Franklin News. So narrow is the Canadian contention that the Canadian manufacturers propose to deny preferential advantages to English goods if they come into Canada except through Canadian ports. Hereafter anybody talking Canadian reciprocity, except within the Boston Chamber of Commerce, which talks just to hear itself, should be regarded to be contemplating a new edition of the Innocents Abroad.

PRESS COMMENT.

The Sap is in the Maple. Chicago Tribune: They are making real Vermont maple sugar now in Vermont—and elsewhere.

Subscriber Real Mad. Fond du Lac Reporter: Political editorials are not exactly baby food and are not intended for children any way.

New Application of Old Saw. St. Louis Globe-Democrat: A funnel-shaped cloud is an ugly visitor, but one touch of it makes the whole country kin.

Good-Natured Alphonso. Milwaukee Free Press: The young king of Spain must be a good natured fellow. He cannot stop grinning long enough to have his picture taken.

Uneasy Days. Milwaukee Journal: There never was a time when the sudden millionaire had so many tacks in his chair.

Slump in Temperature Impends. Sheboygan Journal: There are signs that Senator La Follette is getting through the layer of sawdust and is about to strike something hard and cold in the senate icehouse.

Sincerity Questioned. Evening Wisconsin: Joseph McGill Patterson of Chicago, who has resigned his position as commissioner of public works to become a Socialist, is probably a Socialist for politics only.

Plain Diet Possibly. Sheboygan Journal: John R. Walsh, president of the defunct Chicago National bank, is under arrest. While Mr. Walsh would not be hanged if convicted, it is possible that he might have to subsist on plainer food.

Boost Expected. Milwaukee Sentinel: The people of Wisconsin will be surprised if the coming examination of the Northwestern Life does not prove to be the best advertisement that insurance company ever had.

More Genteel But Still Strong. Exchange: A young American named Armstrong has just won $650,000 at Monte Carlo. The strong arm family have usually been bold-up artists, but this one has got into a more genteel game.

What Ivins is Up to. Exchange: Perhaps William M. Ivins, the eminently unbossed man who also ran for mayor of New York, thinks "Gov. Ivins" would sound pretty well. Otherwise, he is inexplicably busy and assertive.

Sending Our Trouble to China. Chicago Record-Herald: It is announced that the United States has sent 720,000,000 cigarettes to China during the past year. Yet some people are trying to hold the missionaries responsible for the trouble over there.

Peaches and Ice. Exchange: The Georgia peach crop has been blighted three times this far this season. If the Georgia peach growers have any of the thrift that appertains to the ice men they will hasten to raise the price of peaches.

"Tubs" Will Disappear. Exchange: The signs so familiar to Chicago visitors, "The biggest family of beer in Chicago," will probably refer to something smaller than a young bath tub, now that a $1000 license is to be imposed for the privilege of hanging it out.

Problem Back to Police. Chicago Inter Ocean: The $1,000 saloon license will help no doubt to pay for an increase in the police force. The argument, however, that a higher license will lessen the number of dives is erroneous. The dives can afford to pay well for the privileges they enjoy in this city. Only the police can close them.

Whereabouts Again Surmised. Chicago Tribune: The latest story is that Mr. Rockefeller has offered to let the Russians have $200,000,000 to tide them over their financial emergency, merely taking a few of their railways as security. Information concerning Mr. Rockefeller's present address, therefore, may be obtained, possibly, by making judicious inquiries in St. Petersburg.

Why Folk's Talk Doesn't Connect. St. Louis Globe-Democrat: Gov. Folk's free-trade speeches are not received with enthusiasm by the farmers of the west, who remember that during the last democratic administration sheep were sold for 25 cents each, and horses were turned adrift in the northwest because they had no marketable value.

Don't Leave in the Tin! Exchange: Advocates of the use of preservatives in canned and bottled foods will point to the fatal poisoning of two young women at Grand Rapids, Michigan, through the eating of canned salmon that was permitted to remain in the package for some time after it had been opened. But the poisoning of the victims in this instance had been avoided by the common precaution of removing the fish from the tin to a china dish immediately upon the opening of the can, while no amount of care will safeguard the consumer of foods in which poisonous preservatives are hidden.

The New Football Rules. Exchange: The American Intercollegiate Football Rules Committee has completed its task of revision, and the athletes of the various colleges and universities will soon be coming the results of their work and trying to familiarize themselves with the new rules, and devising tricks by which they can gain an advantage without actually violating them.

The aim of the committee was to remove all opportunities for dishonesty or brutality, and to open the game in the interest of spectacular playing for the benefit of the patronizing public. It has increased the distances to be gained in three "downs" to ten yards, and provided for a weakening of the defense, as an offset. It has also provided penalties for unnecessary roughness, abusive language and downright brutality. The latter is specified as "striking an opponent with the clenched fist or elbow, or hitting the runner carrying the ball in the face with the heel or the hand, or kicking, or kicking, or otherwise trying to injure an opponent. There is a special rule concerning brutality which recommends disqualification for one year for the second offense.

The fact that the committee was compelled to make special rules concerning striking and kicking is evidence that this has been done in the past, and if it can be prevented, and if in addition the game can be opened so that it will be more interesting to the spectators, perhaps football will become more popular than ever. The devotees of sport who are in evidence at the treasurer's box and on the bleachers and grand stands like fair playing and are as ready to cheer the defeated who accept defeat gracefully as to applaud the victors.

BEET GROWERS LIKE PRESENT PROSPECTS

Interesting Item Regarding Beet and Beet Prices from a Nearby Exchange.

That Rock county farmers are alive to the situation regarding the growing of beets is evidenced by the following extract from a nearby exchange. The work of seeding contracts for the three factories growing from this territory is progressing rapidly, and Janesville will next year have considerable acreage in northern Illinois. Now that the question of free trade with the Philippines, allowing them to import sugar and tobacco at less cost than it can be grown here is definitely settled, considerable added interest in these two lines of work is shown. The clipping referred to is as follows:

"Sugar beet growers are to receive better prices in 1906 for their crop than last season, although growers for the most part seemed well pleased with their returns for the 1905 crop. With three factories, Janesville, Menomonee Falls and Madison, bidding for beets, the price has been raised fifty cents per ton and the grower has at least two forms of contracts to choose from. One gives him 85 per cent net for his beets, no test to be considered. By the other form he receives 450 per ton for beets testing 12 per cent or less sugar, with 25c per ton for each additional one per cent of sugar. This makes 14 per cent beets grower $5 per ton. Added to this the grower is allowed under each form of contract 25c additional for November delivery and 50c per ton for December delivery. Under this arrangement there is scarcely a grower who will not receive more than 85 per cent for his beets, while many of the successful growers in this vicinity will get from $7.50 to $8.25 per ton with beets as good as they proved the past season. Beet pulp wet may be had free at the factory, or mixed with molasses and dried it may be had in sacks at $14 per ton. The drying process eliminates about 90 per cent of water, thus saving cost of transportation. It makes excellent feed and will keep any length of time desired."

BUILDING NOTES

Though no building operations have as yet commenced here this year it is expected that the season will open earlier than usual. There is but little frost in the ground now, and it will take but a short soft spell to entirely remove this. After the thaw in January there was no frost in the ground whatever and there has been no very severe weather to deepen the little formed snow. Were there to be summer the contractors no doubt would not wait for the disappearance of frost but begin immediately.

By the addition of a porch, a porte-cochere and a promenade the residence of Mr. A. P. Lovejoy on Park Place South is to be changed in its architectural lines and greatly beautified this summer. The plans for the change have been prepared in the office of L. L. Hilton & Company and are now ready for bids. They call for a porch on the east side of the structure extending into a porte-cochere and a promenade reaching around the corner to the front porch. The columns of this promenade will support an addition to the second story. The material for these additions will be entirely cut stone and only the most skilled labor will be able to prepare this. The expense has not yet been estimated and the contract will be let on the stipulation that the work must be done by June first or a per diem forfeit will be levied.

The plans and specifications for the flats to be erected on Linn street by Benedict & Baldwin have been completed and are now in the hands of prospective bidders.

Fred Sheldon will begin shortly to make extensive repairs and slight changes in the residence structure on Milwaukee avenue recently purchased by him from the estate of the late Dr. Joseph B. Whiting. The Garlick Sanitarium, which has been occupying the building will move to the old Walter Helms residence on South Main street.

L. L. Hilton and Company are now drawing plans for $8,000 worth of new building to be done in Beloit this summer. The money will be expended for two residences, each of $4,000, to be erected for W. H. Quinn. The foundation and the portion of the first story up to the window sills will be of cement blocks. The remainder of the walls are to be of plaster and at the corners and in other convenient places plaster pilasters will be constructed, giving the building the appearance of being built on a frame work of square pillars.

FARMER LADS DO NOT FEAR TO TELL TRUTH

Seem to Be Only Students of State University Who Do Not Fear the Faculty.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., March 3.—These farmers' sons that come down here for twelve weeks in the winter time to learn scientific agriculture don't wear fancy clothes, pinch-nose glasses and sling big chunks of the dictionary, but they have more sense than the students in the department of Greek and philosophy. This is the way Senator George Wylie, chairman of the Wisconsin legislative committee investigating the university, spoke of the witness from the short course in agriculture. The committee has had difficulty in getting the classical students to testify freely about the professors and instructors in their departments, but the agricultural students impress the committee as having much to say and being able to say it. There has been a veritable insurrection among the students of the college of agriculture against the dean of that department, W. A. Henry, and other officials and the investigating committee has got the best of it. A mass meeting of the farmer boys in college was held to take action upon evils in the department. Resolutions were adopted, setting forth in detail the squabbles and jealousies of the farm faculty and laying the state of affairs before President C. R. Van Hise and the legislative committee. The resolutions demand that the faculty cease from fighting among themselves and present more harmony and valuable instruction. The mass meeting was attended by 110 out of 133 students in the department and only four votes were cast in favor of the faculty and against the resolutions. Some 15 members of the class were orally examined by the legislators. The students testified that the members of the faculty are so jealous of each other that they even resort to opening the mail of their associates. This was charged against Dean Henry himself with reference to the personal agronomy of R. A. Moore, professor of agronomy, well known on account of his invention of the formula for the prevention of smut in oats. An interesting development is the fact that practical unanimity exists among the farmer students in favor of Professor G. N. Knapp, recently discharged by the regents after proceedings in which he was charged by Dean Henry with being a "trouble-maker."

JANESVILLE HIGH SCHOOL PLAY TWO GAMES

This week the Janesville high school basketball team will play two games. Announcement of the contest with the university freshmen to take place here Saturday night, has already been made and today arrangements for the game at Broadhead tomorrow evening were completed. The five is to go there at 6:40 o'clock and remain over night. Though the Broadhead game should not be hard, the locals will be at a disadvantage, playing on a strange floor and with two men out. Bert Baker is confined to his home with a severe cold, threatened with pneumonia, and Elmer Dreyer is unable to walk, the result of a serious sprain of one ankle.

KICKERS' KOLUM

Janesville, March 6. Editor Gazette: Now that high license has won in Chicago why is it that we can't have it in Janesville? A few high class saloons paying higher license would be an improvement over present conditions, would limit the number of saloons doing business in the city, would require less police protection and would bring about much-needed reform. Present conditions demand it, and while it will eventually come anyway, why not now? To limit the number of saloons by means of high license without putting a crimp in the city treasury should interest Janesville voters. A VOTER.

Kickers' Kolum: Lately there has been much talk about the river and its abuses and obstructions. Yes, a good deal of talk and more than talk. Arrangements have been made for fixing above but no arrangements for the stopping of obstructing the natural flow of the current. If anyone will just stand at the west end of the Court street bridge they will see a barn wholly upon the river and part of the red building which is seemingly upon the dry land. So far as I can learn no privilege to put a barn on the river was ever asked. But the much worse feature of this obnoxious act upon the river is the solid filling in of about one-sixth of the natural current of the river. Yesterday I stood with others taking a survey of the outrage upon the river and the public's rights. This obstruction causes a rise of all of six inches of the water below the dam, and is an annoyance to all persons along the river bank. Aid Merritt and the other ones who go for the city's rights, it is hoped, will come to the rescue in their behalf. CITIZEN.

Spring Suit Sale..

March 12th and 13th, Monday and Tuesday, are the days set for our first display and sale of Women's Suits, Separate Jackets, Tourist Coats, etc. This will be an important event, and we feel safe in saying that all special orders taken will be received before Easter. Mr. Rittenhouse, who has conducted many special suit sales for us, will have with him samples representing the great garment makers—Strawbridge & Clothier of Philadelphia.

When special measures are taken for Suits for women who usually have trouble in getting fitted, we have the jacket linings sent to us first, and same are fitted to customers by our tailors, which insures satisfaction. Women who are difficult to fit need have no hesitancy about ordering a suit as we take all the risk.

The pretty new things will be shown, such as white and light colored spring creations in Jackets, Tourist Coats, Suits, fancy Silk Coats and Wraps. This will be a rare opportunity to get posted and we want every one to feel free to come. Two days, remember, March 12th and 13th.

MRS. W. H. TAYLOR, CENTENARIAN DIES AT RURAL HOME

Corner Chatham and Ravine Streets, freely gives the use of her name in endorsing the PAINLESSNESS of the dental work of DR. RICHARDS. She was suffering severely with a ulcerated tooth, which was so sore that to touch it gave her untold agony.

Dr. Richards removed this tooth without the LEAST BIT OF PAIN. After her about it.

These things are not being done in a corner.

People are awakening to the fact that REAL PAINLESS DENTISTRY at last is being done here in Janesville.

Now as to yourself.
If you can break away from any preconceived notions or prejudices you may have unconsciously imbibed from other sources—you may obtain the benefits of real PAINLESS DENTISTRY by consulting Dr. Richards for the dental work of yourself and family.

The size of his bill is another feature that saves you pain.

NO DECLAMATORY CONTESTS UNTIL AFTER THE VACATION

Students Will Have A Week Off Beginning On The Evening Of March 30.

Though other high schools about the state are holding their annual school declamatory contests at present work in this line has but commenced at the local school. The class and interclass competitions must take place before the medal contest is held and Superintendent Enslin says that these will not occur until after the regular spring vacation.

Following the medal contest will be the league event, which is to take place at Evansville this year and the district event which is usual to take place at Whitewater. The final contest is the state competition at Madison, usually held early in June. Prof. A. A. Scholtz of Evansville wishes to hold the league contest on April 30, but it is doubtful if the other schools will be ready as early as that. The spring vacation is to be of a week's duration, beginning on the evening of Friday, March 30.

STATE GOLF TOURNEY LAST WEEK OF JUNE

Larger Events Have Now Been Scheduled, and Directors Will Soon Meet Here to Fix Date.

All the western golf tournaments are to be held unusually early this season, the Wisconsin state meet at Janesville along with the others. The western amateur championship contest is to take place at the Glen Echo club's grounds in St. Louis June 19 to 23. On June 18, the day preceding the individual championship, the competition for the Olympic team cup will be held. The trophy first won by Captain Chandler Egan's team of ten at Glen Echo in the Olympic championship in 1904, and last year won by the Western Pennsylvania team by the day before the qualifying round for the national championship at Wheaton.

Also, the members of all the teams representing golf associations will be invited to play in the individual western championship—a decided departure—a move in harmony with the act of the United States Golf association last year in permitting the Canadian team to play in the national individual event.

The open championship will be held at the Homewood Country club on Thursday and Friday, June 14 and 15, in the week preceding that of the amateur championship. No definite dates have been set for the Marshall Field trophy team competition, the Onwentsia club desiring deferment of action for a short time.

Glen View's annual Age Limit tourney will be held May 19; instead of on two successive Saturdays, as previously. Glen View's annual open tournament was set for June 4 to 9. Midlothian also will hold an open tournament this year, and the dates July 23 to 28 were given for this event.

These dates having been ascertained, the directors of the Wisconsin Golf Association will shortly meet in this city and fix the time for the state tournament at Janesville.

In all probability the last week in June corresponding to the 25th will be chosen. The schedule will be arranged and the campaign of publicity planned. The call will doubtless be issued in a day or two. With weather conditions favoring, the season at the local links will commence this year early in May and it is anticipated that more enthusiasm will be manifested than ever before.

Dr. Pember, assisted by Drs. Palmer and Farnsworth, performed an operation upon Dennis J. Barry at his home, 106 Gold street, this morning, in order to relieve the congestion of one of the patient's lungs, which resulted from pleural pneumonia. A portion of the rib was removed and two quarts of pus taken from the affected organ. Mr. Barry is in a very critical condition but his recovery is expected and hoped for by numerous friends. A similar operation, which was also successful, was performed yesterday on William Atkinson, a patient of Dr. Farnsworth.

Washington, D. C., March 8.—John D. King, chairman of the rural carriers' examining board of the civil service commission, who had been connected with the railway postal service for forty-five years, died here today of nervous paralysis. He entered the postal service as a clerk at Janesville, Wis., where the body will be interred.

Expressions of the deepest regret were heard on every side when the news was conveyed by the grief-stricken relatives to the scores of sincere and loyal friends who had regarded Douglas King from the days of his boyhood as a man whose character, deeds, and life were as pure gold to his fellow men. Though he had lived away from Janesville many years he never gave up his residence here and some fine sentiment in his nature led him to always keep beside him a key to the home at No. 1 Sinclair street, where a room containing many of his boyhood possessions was always in waiting for him.

Mr. King was born in the city of Janesville Nov. 18, 1845. He went into the local postoffice as a stamp clerk, while a young man, and after rapid promotions to the positions of register clerk and deputy postmaster was made a postoffice inspector with headquarters at Chicago. Subsequently he was chief inspector for four years at Omaha and still later held a similar position for four years at Denver, Colo. He was engaged in the duties of the latter post when he received his appointment as chief of the Washington, D. C., division of inspectors.

Afflicted with Writer's Cramp.
He was married in 1876, to Miss Mary Amoret Wilson, daughter of Henry O. Wilson, who formerly conducted a dry-goods business in this city. Harry King who was at one time private secretary to Congressman H. A. Cooper and is now vice president of the National Surety Co. of New York, is the only surviving child; another having died in infancy. Deceased leaves three sisters: Mrs. Margaret Fern of Elrod, South Dakota; the Misses Agnes King and Angie T. King of Janesville; a brother, Robert Wallace King, of 798 President street, Brooklyn, N. Y.; two half brothers—John Hamilton of Cunningham, Wash.; and Robert Hamilton of Black Duck, Minn.; two nephews—John D. King of Janesville and Frank M. King of the money order department of the New York postoffice. Besides these relatives, a brother-in-law, Frank Wilson, railroad auditor with headquarters at Kansas City, and Harry Wilson, a division superintendent at Helena, Montana, will probably come here to attend the funeral arrangements for which have not been completed.

Mr. King became afflicted with writer's cramp about two years and a half ago. He failed to place himself under the care of a specialist until his condition continually growing more serious by the many cares which he allowed to harass him, had become so critical as to be almost hopeless. Yet his relatives and friends continued to hope up to the time the unexpected news of his death was received this morning.

A NOVEL IDEA ARRANGED BY THE SALVATION ARMY

Make Announcement That on March 11th at Eight O'clock They Will Give a Baby Away.

Captain Fleming of The Salvation Army makes the startling announcement that on Sunday next a baby will be given away at the Salvation army barracks on West Milwaukee street. The time set for this event is given as eight o'clock. Everyone is invited to be present. When asked for particulars Captain Fleming says that is what he represents—a baby given away. The Captain is doing much work in the city to clear the army from its debts and make the work here what it should be. There have been several minor disturbances at the meetings, but the Captain is much in earnest in his work and is really benefiting the city by his work. Yesterday he visited Madison and collected eight dollars in the state Capital, showing that the employers of the statehouse are willing to divide their worldly possessions for the benefit of erring Janesville.

Two Ballots Will Be Given Each Voter—Mark One and Vote It—Hand Other Back.

The primary election is simple in its operation, but many do not appear to understand how it is conducted. It is an election held by law on March 20th at the voting booths in the various wards. Both parties vote at the same time. The clerk simply hands each voter the two ballots, the republican and the democrat, without asking him his politics. The voter then retires to the curtained box and marks the ballot he wishes to vote. He can only vote one of them, either the republican or democrat. He then puts the unused ballot in the unused ballot box and votes the one he has marked in the regular ballot box. Nobody knows for which party he has voted, but he cannot mark for a man or one ticket, for allman or one ticket, for anybody on the other for supervisor. All his voting must be done on the ticket of one party. Take for example, in the first and third wards where there are no democratic nominees. A democrat can take his ballots, democratic and republican, and cast his vote for one of the candidates, writing it on his ticket. This vote will not, however, count for the republican nominee, but will count as a democratic nomination. Two slips, republican and democratic, will be given each voter in each ward, regardless of the fact that in two there are no democratic nominations. However, should the democratic voter so desire he can fill in on his democratic ballot the name of any democrat or republican he pleases and this will count as a nomination for him. Among the old rock-ribbed democrats throughout the city who do not like the idea of voting for a republican this may be done and will bring out a full ticket for both parties should the candidates thus named decide to run. It will also make it possible for the defeated republican nominee to run on the democratic ticket; under the democratic nomination on election day, if he receives enough votes to nominate him.

STURDY BEN TILLMAN

Pen-Portrait of the Picturesque Senator Who Has Suddenly Become One of the Most Important Men in Congress

Startling Turn of the Political Wheel Which Has Made South Carolina's Vindictive Democrat the Ally of President Roosevelt, Whom He Has Always Most Bitterly Opposed—Sidelights on the Character of an Interesting Public Man Who Is Generally Misunderstood

THERE are humors in politics as well as in high finance. That Ben Tillman, the castigator of presidents, the bitterest and most outspoken opponent of Roosevelt in congress, should have been put in charge of the administration's pet measure is so audacious a piece of irony that it has made the country gasp. The motion to have the Hepburn bill reported by Tillman was made by Aldrich, the head and front of the opposition to the measure. It was supported by the other enemies of railroad rate legislation on the senate interstate commerce committee, evidently with the double intention of humiliating Senator Dilliver and the other Republican friends of the measure and of casting ridicule on the proposition itself. The foes of the president's policy knew they could count on enough Democratic votes to elect Tillman, and in this they were not mistaken.

Despite the humor of the situation, the motive of Aldrich in making such a motion is one that will exactly appeal to the American sense of "fair play." But it is just possible that the "railroad" senators have overreached themselves, for Tillman, whatever else may be said of him, is a fighter, is thoroughly in earnest in his advocacy of the rate bill and may prove no mean general in the great parliamentary battle that is impending. In the minds of the great mass of the plain people this is a question that transcends partisanship, and they will be content to see the measure become a law regardless of what man or men may lead the fight. Nor is it probable that the president will lose sleep over the turn that affairs have taken. Loving a fighter, Mr. Roosevelt has been known to express his admiration for the pugnacious qualities of Tillman, even after the South Carolina senator had made one of his most vitriolic attacks on the administration. Honesty and manliness command respect even in a foe, and he who possesses them is the first to appreciate them in another.

The president, along with other friends of rate legislation, wants results. He is big and broad enough, and it is believed that the senators who support his policy are big and broad enough to overlook petty obstacles thrown in the way. The reaching of the goal is the main thing, and so long as that is kept in sight it matters not so much as to the runners or even as to the jockeying. Therefore the American people need not be too much disturbed by the latest phase in the rate fight. The "divinity" that shapes our ends may have a hand in matters even so prosaic as the regulation of corporations, and final good may come out of the seeming tangle in spite of the short-sighted scheming of men.

Sturdy Farmer-Senator.
As for Tillman himself, he has been so much in the public eye that the country knows him, and yet perhaps it does not know him, or rather, it only knows the rough side of him that he has chosen to put forward. Those who are most familiar with this sturdy farmer-senator say that beneath a harsh and uncouth exterior he carries not only a big brain, but a great heart; that he has integrity, ability, true patriotism, genuine democracy, personal bravery and the best of impulses. He is independent and speaks what he thinks, regardless of consequences. From his own viewpoint he is so sincere and so much in earnest, so genuine in his own rough way, that in his eyes the art of ingratiating oneself in the good opinions of men has in it not only an element of subtle selfishness, but of sham as well. His honesty may be savage, and he may enforce his opinions with a rhetorical club, but he at least leaves nobody in doubt as to what he means, and he stands for the thing he is. He may be brutal, even coarse, in his statements, but he hits hard and fights fair. He may shock and offend his own friends and by lack of tact place ammunition in the hands of his enemies, but he succeeds in challenging attention for his principles, and perhaps that is what he desires.

"The ruggedness and vigor of his style, his homely illustrations, his utter lack of diplomacy, the candor with which he announces views that other men who entertain the same opinions think it the part of wisdom to withhold, the bluntness with which he puts forth ideas that he knows to be opposed to those held by his audience, the vitriolic character of some of his denunciations and a manner that from its very forcefulness closely approaches the spectacular and sensational, all these things may attract or repel, according to the character of the hearer, but they cannot be ignored. They have created the popular conception of Tillman, but have they done him justice?"

Tillman did not enter politics until late in the eighties, and then his only object was to secure an agricultural training school for boys. In this he succeeded, founding a successful industrial institution at Calhoun's old home, Fort Hill. Later he also founded a school for girls, which is now one of the leading ones of the sort in all the south. He had no aspirations to run for office, but found other things he thought needed reform and in 1890 was made the farmer's candidate for governor. The succeeding campaign was one of the hottest ever known in the state. Tillman was nominated by an overwhelming majority and elected. He had even a larger majority two years later. During his term as governor he inaugurated the famous dispensary system by which the state took charge of the liquor traffic. At one time this caused a riot, and the militia were called out. Some of the soldiers mutinied, and Tillman contemptuously dismissed them from the service, denouncing them "bandbox soldiers."

At the end of his second term as governor he was a candidate for senator against Ben Butler and was overwhelmingly elected. Six years later he received a large majority for a second term and this year will doubtless be a candidate for re-election. It was during his first candidacy for the senate that he threatened to use a pitchfork on the "fat ribs" of President Cleveland, thus gaining the appreciation of Pitchfork Ben. During his first year in the senate he made a characteristic speech, wherein he made a further attack on Cleveland, referred to John G. Carlisle as "that Judas from Kentucky" and denounced some of his associates in congress as "tools of the money power." When his colleague, McLaurin, supported the McKinley administration Tillman accused him of having been influenced by patronage. McLaurin gave the lie, and Tillman struck him in the face in open senate. For this affair both men were suspended from the roll, but were afterward reinstated on apology being made. At about this time Tillman challenged McLaurin to resign and go before the people. As a result the resignations of both senators went to the governor, who refused to accept them. Later Tillman renewed the challenge in the senate, but McLaurin made no response.

A Magnetic Talker.
When Ben Tillman first tried to make a speech it was a failure. Later efforts had no better result. Discouraged, he sought his wife, who told him that of course he could succeed in speaking as he talked and to think of her. He followed the advice, and his next effort became famous. He hardly ever writes his speeches, and even casts aside his notes. He is magnetic and sways an audience in spite of himself. His voice is very strong and, while sometimes harsh, is organ-like in its modulation and power.

There are a few characteristic utterances of the South Carolina senator: "I would rather go to the infernal regions with my followers than to heaven with the other crowd." "An one of God Almighty's gentlemen." "Abraham Lincoln was the greatest of modern men, and I, from South Carolina, tell you so and feel honored in doing it." "A farmer told one of Tillman's negroes that lightning would strike his master some day." "No, indeed," said the negro, "Massa Tillman is lightning himself."

This is the man that is to have charge of the fight for the rate bill, and it is safe to say that it will be interesting.

Baker, who was gaining self control, turned to Ann. "We have to humor our cooks out here. They're scarce and mighty uncertain in their minds—step and shy at nothing, like a loaded steer."

Louis clapped his hands. "Oh, isn't the talk good, Ann? And these clinics—aren't they fine?"

"Cook made 'em," said Baker. "He's handy as a bootjack with tools."

Ann ignored the chairs, but studied the cook, whose curiously absorbed, sullen yet deft movements interested her. He appeared to be about thirty years of age, and his lean, powerful figure dignified the rough and dust-stained clothes he wore. His profile was stern and manly, but his chin was youthful. His eyes she had not yet seen.

Raymond, on his part, was fairly abashed by the grace and faithful charm of his visitor. She reminded him, as she stood there calmly looking about the grimy walls, or the stories he had read of princesses visiting the huts of their penurious. She was of good height, but the proud lift of her head made her seem taller than she was, and the cut of her gown, the color of her gloves and hat, told of good taste and the service of the best tailors and milliners. "Grant Scott?" he said to himself. "She's an up to date beauty. What will I do to feed her?" And, heart perturbed as he looked, his heart sank within him, and if he could have fink honorably he would have done so instantly.

Raymond took no pains to be noiseless or dainty in his work, but every moment told. He sloshed out the coffee and sliced the bacon and stirred up the fire, all with a grace and quiet dignity which opened Ann's eyes in an effort to understand him. His hands were noticeably fine, and the polish of his head expressed strength and pride. He was very brown, almost as brown as the leather cuffs he wore on his arms.

Once, when he passed out of hearing, she turned to Baker suddenly and asked: "Why does your cook wear spurs? An affection, I suppose."

Baker flushed and stammered. "Well, no; he has to help with the cattle once in awhile."

Raymond called to Perry, who was seated on the doorstep. "Perry, jump your horse and round up a very cottonwood snag. This brush is of no sort of use. I want a hot fire."

Louis beamed on Ann. "He's talking just like Walter Owen's heroes."

Ann silenced him. "Hush! He'll hear you."

Baker, quite ready to take a fall out of Raymond, interposed. "He's a little hard at first, but real sociable when you get him started. He's shy as a rabbit when they're any company round."

Raymond uttered a cough which made Baker start. "I guess I'll go out and see what that driver has done with his horses."

Louis sprang up. "I'll go, too, if you don't mind, sir."

As Ann looked round the low celled room in which the flies buzzed her eyes fell upon a little case of books in the corner. For lack of something better to do, she rose to inspect them. She was surprised to find them mainly essays, and wondered who of these men read Emerson and Burroughs. One of them was a book of verse. Raymond's name was on the fly leaf.

"How handsome the cook is!" was her inward exclamation as she returned to her seat. She was not one of those who sit in silence when they wish information, and, lifting her voice a little, she said:

"I understood Mr. Barnett to say that you had a woman to cook for you?"

Raymond shifted a stove lid. "We did."

"Where is she?"

"Gone—a week ago."

"Isn't there any woman about the place?"

He peered into the coffee pot. "No one but you."

Ann sat in silence for a moment. "I didn't understand, Mr. Barnett said."

Raymond straightened and looked at her somberly. "If Barnett said a little more attention to his ranch and less to polo—I wrote him more than a week ago, that Jones was pulling his freight." He returned to his cooking.

Ann composedly went on. "Was Jones the name of the foreman?"

"No, he was assistant, but he was married, and his wife was out of town. He's gone to Skytown gold camp. The whole country is full of the fever."

Ann, with a note of sympathy in her voice, said: "I don't like to see a big strong man cook. Do you get extra pay for it?"

"Not a cent. We all take turns at it, to tell the honest truth."

"I hope you're the best cook?"

"That wouldn't be saying much, lady. I look in self defense."

Ann opened her eyes at the significance of this phrase. "Then you don't do it as a business?"

"Not by a whole row of steers. Do you like prunes and rice?" he asked hastily.

Ann looked into the dish which he held out toward her and gravely replied: "I don't think I ever ate any. You don't mean they're cooked together?"

"That's what. It sure makes a filling combination," said he, dishing some out before her.

"I can well believe it," she replied, with a humorous intonation. "Let me taste it. Perhaps I'll like it." As she nibbled a little of the mess from the spoon, she glanced up at him with a queer little smile that made the room whirr before his eyes. "It seems a nutritious mixture."

He recovered himself. "Oh, it's a hearty mess, all right. My cooking isn't fancy."

"I beg your pardon," Ann hastened to explain. "I didn't mean to criticize. I didn't intend to hurt your feelings. I'm sure it's a very tasty dish."

"Oh, don't blame you, but you see we're not running a summer hotel exactly. Still, we'll make you as comfortable as we can while you stay."

"By which you mean to hint you hope I won't stay long." She was frankly amused.

He became very sincerely grave. "I didn't say that, lady."

"But you meant it. I'm not obtuse. I know when I am out of place. I shall leave tomorrow."

She was forcing his hand, as he well knew, but he remained gravely simple. "I'll be sorry if our grub or anything else should scare you out."

She changed the subject quickly. "I can see that Louis is to be perfectly happy down here. I am glad I came. I shall feel much more resigned to his being here now that I have met Mr. Raymond and you."

Raymond remained inexpressive. "Your brother is an enthusiast. I believe you said. He'll be more charitable than you, for instance."

Ann didn't like his emphasis. "I don't wonder at your resentment. Our coming is an imposition, but if I had known—please be kind enough to admit that I didn't know how you were situated."

Raymond resumed his cowboy manner. "Now, lady, you let that go. I don't blame you a hair. You're here, and I'll see—mean, the boss will see—we'll all see—that the boy is treated right, and I'll guarantee that he gets a fair share of what's going. I'm not apologizing, but I hope you won't take us on the wrong slant. I hope you'll come often. You brighten up the place wonderfully."

Ann drew herself up. "I don't understand you, Mr. —"

"Call me cook—Mr. Cook. Anything goes out here."

They were now squinted before each other, but with a malicious smile lurking at the corner of his mouth, she with dark and puzzled brow.

"Of course, you cowboys are all strange to me—I mean your manners and customs—but my roommate at college told me a good deal about this life. She was from Colorado."

He betrayed new interest. "What was your college? Smith?"

Ann lifted her eyebrows in surprise. "No. What made you think it was?"

Raymond began to retreat. "Oh, I don't know. You seemed about that style. I mean to say, you carry your self like a Smith college girl that came down here once with Mrs. Barnett."

He caught up the water bucket. "Excuse me a minute. I'll run down to the spring and get some water." His going was equivalent to flight.

Ann smiled composedly as she sipped her coffee, which was very good indeed.

Louis burst in at the door. "Sis, you ought to see the corals out here. They have ninety head of horses! Think of that! And I'm to ride all I want to!"

Baker, who appeared just behind him, put in a drawing word. "Peared like he wanted to ride four to one, like a circus man. Are you getting something to eat, miss?"

"Oh, yes, indeed."

Louis, throwing down his cap in imitation of Raymond, cried out: "I'm hungry!"

Ann turned to Baker. "Mr. Foreman, isn't there something mysterious about your cook? Part of the time he speaks like a man of the world and part of the time like a rancher. I think he's playing a part, and playing it badly."

"What makes you think so?" asked Louis. "They say he's a bully rider."

"They ain't none better, miss," replied Baker, who began to look a little uneasy.

Ann pursued her point. "I think he's one of those romantic cowboys who have seen better days—perhaps an English nobleman in disguise."

Baker was always ready when a chance to get even with Raymond offered itself. He poked his plump face into a frown of deep concern. "I guess you're some right, miss, but he ain't no English lord, I don't think. We never inquire very close into a man's pedigree out here if he can ride a cayuse and flip a gun. But he's American, all right, and a good cook."

"Is Cook his real name?"

"Baker became cautious. 'Did he say his name was Cook? If he did, that goes. I'm not in the habit of disputing him.'"

"No, he didn't tell his name, but he intimated that I might call him Cook. Your name is Raymond, isn't it?"

"Baker was again slow to answer. 'Did he intimate that my name was Raymond?'"

Ann after looking at him in silence remarked gravely. "Of course, you're both having fun with us because we're from the east and I don't think it quite nice in you."

Baker began to look distressed. "Oh, see here, miss; you mustn't think you're all wrong. Why, we're delighted—we you see—"

Ann turned to Louis. "Louis, you are living out one of Owen's stories this very minute. I want you to stay here until you can meet these people on their own ground." She faced Baker again. "Tell me more about this cook. He's a college man, and there's some hidden mystery, as the story books say. What brought him to this pass? Is he a fugitive from justice?"

Baker took a seat and appeared to ponder. "Well, now, I don't like to say. You see, it ain't safe to tell tales on Cook. If you'll swear not to breathe a word—"

"Hold up your hands, Louis, and swear," cried Ann. "Of course we won't tell."

Baker settled into his chair. "You mustn't blame him till you hear the full story, but he killed a feller back east, somewhere in Illinois."

Ann started melodramatically. "Really?"

Baker, pleased with his success, added. "Two of 'em, in fact."

Louis, wide eyed with interest. "What did he do it for?"

"Baker, glowing with pleasure, in the work of his own imagination, cut loose from his moorings. 'It was this way. He was courting a girl—the daughter of a rich farmer—and her family was not because Rob was poor, and her dad would not another fellow on to tell lies about Rob's drinkin' and all that, and Rob took up with this feller and just naturally plied him full of soft nose bullets. That led him to seek higher altitudes, as the newspapers say. Now, that's the plain truth of the whole business, as I heard it.'"

Louis pursued the inquiry. "Who was the other man he killed?"

"The deputy sheriff. Had to do that to get away."

Ann looked about. "You say he reads these books?"

"When he has time. He dotes on 'em.'"

"Do you read them?"

"Great Scott, no! I'd go to sleep over such things. 'The Boy's Own' is about my size."

Ann's tone was reflective. "That's queer. Mr. Barnett said you were a great reader."

Baker paled, then got red. He had walked into a clever little trap. He wriggled in his chair. "Did he say that? Well—I—I used to, but lately!"

Ann looked at him keenly and said calmly: "You, also, are an impostor. Your name isn't Raymond—you're not the foreman. You are all bandits and have stolen my cousin's ranch and are running it to suit yourselves. I believe you killed poor old Mr. Jones and his wife."

Louis sprang to his feet. "Ann, what do you mean?"

Baker threw up both hands. "Hold on! Don't shoot! I'll come down. I knew I couldn't keep the game going. He rose, and his manner changed. "Now, listen: I'll tell you the square truth, then. It was my turn to cook, and Raymond—that's our boss—when he heard you was comin', knowin' I couldn't cook sour bran mash, says: 'Baker, you'll have to play boss while the company's here. I've got to toss up the bacon and prunes. Now that's the fact, lady.'"

Ann, with conviction, turned to Louis: "Now I believe he's telling the truth. What is your name?"

"John Edwin Baker—Jack, the boys call me. I never had any other name. I'm sorry to say, and I came here from Kansas. I never killed anything bigger'n a coyote. I'm just a plain cow puncher at twenty-six per month."

Raymond, reappearing at the door, put them all into guilty confusion. His eyes were too keen to be withstood, and Ann's lashes fell for a moment as he offered the dipper. "Like a cool drink, lady?"

She recovered herself instantly. "Thank you, if you will be so kind."

Raymond threw a glance at Baker that propelled him through the doorway as palpably as a kick, then turned to Louis. "How does the grub go, youngster?"

"Bully," replied the boy as he took up a spoonful of rice. His eyes followed the little figure of the rancher with joy.

Ann cut in with a grave face, belied by something in her voice. "I didn't suppose a foreman would stoop to cook."

Railroad Contractor Is Dead.

Frankfort, Ky., March 8.—H. P. Mason, president of the Mason-Hoge company, railroad contractors, is dead.

READY TO KILL STATEHOOD.

Senator Spooner Reveals Attitude of Upper House Toward Arizona.

Washington, March 8.—No statehood legislation will be had at this session of congress unless the president and the house will accept a bill providing for the admission only of Oklahoma and Indian Territory. The joint statehood bill, which will be voted upon in the senate Friday, will not be passed in the form the president and the house desire. The provision for the admission of New Mexico and Arizona as one state will be defeated in effect, if not outright. A speech made by Senator Spooner of Wisconsin removed all doubt of the fate awaiting the Arizona-New Mexico part of the bill. Although he voted for the joint statehood bill last session, Mr. Spooner announced unyielding opposition to it, having discovered that the government is pledged to the people of Arizona to maintain for them a territorial form of government until they are admitted into the Union. Mr. Spooner's speech disclosed the fact that Senator Foraker on Friday will offer an amendment to strike from the bill all that part relating to Arizona and New Mexico. This amendment is almost certain to carry. Should it be defeated, however, he will propose that the people of Arizona and New Mexico be permitted to vote separately to determine for themselves whether they will enter the Union. There is no question that this amendment will be adopted.

Reports Pure Food Bill.

Washington, March 8.—A pure food bill, broadly similar to the measure which passed the senate, has been reported to the house from the interstate commerce committee. The most important amendment was to correct what was considered a vital omission for federal control. The amendment provides that it shall be unlawful for any state or municipal health officer or any other person to delay unnecessarily any common carrier engaged in the transportation of passengers or freight between states; provided, however, that the prohibition shall not be construed as giving authority to any person to unload freight at any locality in opposition to the laws or regulations of the state or municipality. The permissible use of adulterants and coloring matter has been slightly enlarged, but a statement must appear upon the label of each package of the quantity of the contents and whether they have been adulterated, blended or mixed. In most instances the ingredients used must be named.

To Drop Aged Clerks.

Washington, March 8.—The year 1913 will be unlucky for the superannuated clerks in government service if a provision in the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill as reported to the house becomes law. It provides that after 1913 all clerks shall be dropped from the pay rolls of Uncle Sam upon reaching the age of 70. In the meantime clerks 70 years old and over shall receive not more than $840, annually, clerks 68 years and over not more than $1,200, and clerks 65 years and over not more than $1,400. The provision will provoke much debate and its parliamentary status is uncertain.

Bank Donates $17,000.

Washington, March 8.—That a certain bank contributed $17,000 to the campaign fund of one of the parties in the recent national election is the charge made by Senator Tillman, who is preparing to push the matter before the senate committee on privileges and elections when it takes up his resolution aimed at this practice in a short time. After hearing Mr. Tillman the committee will decide whether it will order an investigation.

Justice Brown to Retire.

Washington, March 8.—Associate Justice Henry Billings Brown of the United States supreme court intends to retire from the bench and has so notified President Roosevelt. The president offered to appoint Senator Philander C. Knox of Pennsylvania to the vacancy, but the latter declined. Justice Brown was 70 years old March 2. He will serve through the present term of court and will probably retire in the fall.

Favor Farm Loans by Bank.

Washington, March 8.—The house committee on banking and currency has authorized a favorable report on a bill permitting national banks to loan money on farm lands up to one-half of their value, excluding improvements.

TOKENS SENT TO JOCKEYS.

Queer Tributes That Are Sent to the Riders of Race Horses.

One of the greatest of living jockeys has a most remarkable collection of tributes from admirers, unknown and otherwise. It contains, among other strange things, says the Minneapolis Journal, pawn tickets, writs and summonses contributed by unsuccessful backers of his mounts, talismans, sermons and tracts for his spiritual welfare, recipes for all kinds of ailments, from coughs to a tendency to corpulence, forms for insuring against accidents, offers of marriage accompanied by bundles of photographs of would-be wives, wenchers tickets and a pair of worn-out boots with the legend: "All that is left of them after walking from York to London, backed all your mounts."

A few years ago, after his horse had lost an important race, a well-known turfman went up to the jockey and made him a formal and public presentation of a silver snuffbox, saying that, if he would look inside, he would see the kind of horse he ought to ride in the future. The jockey opened the box and found in it half a dozen fat snails.

It was the same spiritual owner who on another occasion presented his jockey with a sumptuous casket, which, on being opened, disclosed a wooden spoon, and to a third jockey who had failed to win an important race, he handed a pair of crutches bought from a beggar on the course.

JAPAN NOW REACHING OUT.

Subsidizes Steamship Lines to South America to Obtain Trade.

Consul Brittain, of Kehl, Germany, reports that according to a recent article in a German newspaper the Japanese government has recently granted a subsidy to a Japanese-South American steamship line, which plies between Japan and Buenos Ayres, Argentina. The object of this is to increase the imports of wool, flour and wheat from Argentina, which products are chiefly needed and desired for Japan's army and marines. An English newspaper also reports on a similar matter and remarks:

"The scheme which has been under consideration for some time for the emigration of Japanese workmen to

ROGERS IS TO ANSWER HADLEY'S QUESTIONS

John D. Rockefeller Will Not Be Compelled to Go on Stand if Replies Are Satisfactory.

New York, March 8.—All signs point now to the conclusion that John D. Rockefeller has not dodged process servers for the last few months in vain.

A new turn in the suit of the state of Missouri against the Standard Oil company indicates that he will not be required to go on the stand and let Attorney General Hadley of that state corner him with embarrassing questions of the kind that H. H. Rogers refused to answer.

Alfred D. Eddy of Chicago, general western attorney for the Standard Oil company, is on his way here for a conference with the company's officials. It is understood he is armed with a proposition from Hadley to the effect if H. M. Tilford, W. H. Tilford and W. M. Van Buren will agree to go on the stand and answer all questions the attorney general chooses to fire at them he will not insist on dragging Rockefeller into court.

One of the conditions of this proposition is that H. H. Rogers must answer all the questions he declined to answer on the occasion of Hadley's mission here a few weeks ago.

Eddy is said to have been authorized to assure Hadley before his departure from St. Louis that Rogers would no longer dodge the questions put to him, and that he will tell all about the Standard subsidiary companies.

A dispatch from Jefferson City, Mo., quotes Attorney General Hadley as saying:

"It has been suggested, witnesses already under subpoena in New York could give all the information that is desired by this state. But if I find these officials not prepared to enlighten me as desired then every means will be used to get into court those who are able to do so."

SWEARS TO MURDER PRESIDENT

Woman Held in New Orleans Fears Death if Oath is Violated.

New Orleans, La., March 8.—Declaring that her life will be taken unless she assassinates President Roosevelt, a woman who gave her name as Mrs. W. B. Lewalter of Philadelphia applied at central police headquarters for protection. She spoke rationally on all general subjects, but the police and coroner decided to detain her for an examination. Mrs. Lewalter said that she fell in with a party of socialists in Philadelphia and that she was taken to a room there and made to take an oath against the president, being told that she would be destroyed if it was not executed. She said she fled to Houston, Tex., but the men followed her there, and that she had then come to New Orleans.

GEN. MILES WILL VISIT URBANA

Will Review Cadets and Make an Address on Decoration Day.

Champaign, Ill., March 8.—President James of the University of Illinois announces that Lieutenant General Nelson A. Miles, U. S. A., has accepted an invitation to visit the University of Illinois and take part in the special features of military and Decoration day at that institution on May 30. He will review the university cadet regiment and make an address on "The Training of the Citizen Soldier." The University of Illinois receives a considerable income from the federal treasury. In conformance with federal law it makes the study of military tactics obligatory upon every male student and has become the largest of any of the forty odd institutions which exist as a result of the federal act of 1862.

SHERIFF STOPS RIOT AT MINE

Portuguese Who Resisted Advent of Basques Arrested and Fined.

Tonopah, Nev., March 8.—Sheriff Logan has just returned from Berlin, Nev., where there has been trouble with the miners, all of whom are foreigners. The company has been hiring Basques to replace Portuguese, who threatened the newcomers. The Portuguese are armed. The foreman was badly beaten and the superintendent fled. The local justice of the peace wired for the sheriff and deputies, who arrived in time to avert a race war. Twenty-seven men were arrested and tried before the justice and fined. Those who could not pay were driven from the camp and the rest held in custody.

FIGHTS AGAINST THE STATE TAX

Western Union in Answer to Suit Declines Claim of Minnesota.

St. Paul, Minn., March 8.—The Western Union Telegraph company has made answer to the state in its suit to collect back taxes to the amount of $33,000. The company denied the debt and the outlook now is for a repetition of the fight just concluded.

The taxes demanded are for the years 1901 to 1904 on the valuations of $1,000,000. The Supreme court upheld the valuation fixed and the company paid the tax for 1899 and 1900, but ever since has made payments only on its returns.

DROPSY.

Many club members have expressed the desire that a lecture be given on the subject of dropsy. The demand has at last become so preponderant that I herewith give the subject attention. The fact of the matter is that what is commonly termed dropsy is not often, if ever, a distinct disease, but is rather a symptom, or after effect, which occurs as the result of other diseased conditions. As such, it has been discussed in several foregoing articles; still, I have no objection to giving a lecture under the title itself.

In considering those things which may rightly be classed under this title it must be remembered that there is waste continually occurring in the human system. No movement of the body, no matter whether great or small, voluntary or involuntary, takes place without a certain amount of the substance of the body being changed into what is termed waste—that is, matter from all vitality has been consumed. For example, a deep breath of good, pure air is inhaled and comes in contact with the lungs, vitalizing the blood. The air is then exhaled. Quite a change has occurred since it was taken into the lungs. The life-giving part has been retained, and entirely another substance is substituted, and in this new state is expelled. The carbonic acid, as it is called, is eliminated, the oxygen being the part which has been retained. But the carbonic acid gas is only one form in which the impurities of the body are removed, and passed into the surrounding atmosphere.

When this used-up material is thrown off in large quantities the vital process is continuing strongly; but when it is removed only in small quantities that process is correspondingly diminished.

There is a great deal of moisture eliminated from the system by exhalation. Waste or used-up material is naturally of this character as can be proved by breathing on the cold surface of a window pane, when the watery substance is condensed, and trickles down in tiny streams.

Where the vital process is being carried on vigorously this watery vapor is abundant; if, however, that process is rather sluggish, the vapor is present in smaller quantity. That is, in the one instance waste is carried off rapidly, while in the other it is eliminated but slowly.

It is probably best to first take up cases in which the amount breathed in is very small. Substance requiring to be removed, in such cases, is allowed to accumulate, which cannot be if health is to be maintained. Thus far the subject of dropsy has been considered only in connection with the lungs.

If the air inhaled is damp and insufficiently oxygenated the quantity of worthless matter is naturally very large; and even from this source that waste is likely to accumulate. Then, at the same time, the amount expelled by exhalation is very small; therefore it will be the unavoidable consequence that waste will accumulate in the system. This, however, is not the most prevalent form of dropsy.

The first thing to be considered is the lungs and to ascertain whether that most important factor, the breath, is being dealt with fairly. Is the air breathed dry and fresh or is it damp and largely deoxygenated? Perhaps excessive moisture is taken in, and a smaller quantity of waste than should be expelled. This waste and moisture is undoubtedly retained, and when it is, lodges, as is certain to be the case somewhere, and if not eliminated by other organs than the lungs, it will certainly produce dropsy in some form.

That which is of next importance in bringing on this disease is the insensible perspiration. There is a much greater amount of effete matter eliminated from the body when every part is in good health than would be imagined.

But supposing it does not pass on through the lungs, as breath, or by perspiration, sensible or insensible? Then it seeks the only remaining outlet, the kidneys, in a condensed state, causing these organs to be overloaded and, as a consequence, injured. In cases where the lungs fail to carry off the waste matter as they should, it is frequently thrown off by profuse night sweats, which are very weakening in their effect.

In cases where there are no sweatings or other adequate outlet for the used-up material that should pass off in insensible perspiration and exhalation, that waste condenses and attempts to discover an avenue of escape in the form of water. It is the time when the kidneys demand attention. If they have been given wise consideration, however, it immediately leads to their relief by promoting activity in the lungs and increasing elimination by the skin.

It frequently happens that some short-sighted practitioner working on the effect of a dropsical case makes his attack directly on the kidneys themselves, which, of course, are unable to perform the extra amount of work which has been imposed on them. He seems to be entirely oblivious to the state of the inactivity of the lungs and of the skin. In his blindness he applies the spur of drugs to the already overworked and jaded kidneys and bowels, and says not a word to the shivering lungs and skin. He frequently succeeds in removing the water by such treatment, but he also finds he has robbed the organs operated upon of their vitality. If the patient has an iron constitution and withstands the attack of drugs, he is soon chagrined to find the water again accumulating, and this time the drugs fail to remove it.

It stands to reason that the first thing which should be done in the case where watery waste accumulates in the body is to increase the action of the lungs so they will perform the natural amount of work. A very close second should be to live up to the skin. But the lungs are really first if a hope of a cure is to be entertained. In foregoing lectures, how to increase the activity of the lungs and skin by simple home methods have already been given.

What is commonly termed suffusion on the lungs is merely this watery waste which has accumulated, it being the condensed vapor that should have been breathed away. This is dropsy of the lungs, frequently called "water on the chest," or pleurisy. Simply pack the upper half of the back to allay inflammation, after which apply a gently rubbing with hot olive oil between the shoulders to increase the action of the lungs. If used in time, this alone would ward off the threatened condition.

Another form of what is called dropsy is a watery swelling over the stomach and bowels—that is, the condensed vapor that should have passed off by exhalation and perspiration collects, in such cases, over the abdomen.

As was the case with "water in the chest" action of the lungs should first be stimulated by the above methods, the action of the skin quickened by sponging with strong white vinegar, then rubbing, first with lather, and next with fresh olive oil, thereby, if such a thing be possible, securing a natural, healthy condition of the skin. And by this method of procedure the kidneys will be relieved.

In cases where the feet have swollen first and the vapor waste has risen farther and farther upward, the skin is the first thing demanding attention. It is well, too, to place a large bar of putty to the lower half of the back, which will have an ideal effect on the kidneys and bowels. Instances are recalled where this alone removed the water and entirely cured the dropsy.

The first thing is to be sure the lungs are stimulated to perform their part, then attend to the skin and secure its co-operation in eliminating the waste matter, stimulating the kidneys and bowels with gentle heat. Be careful and exact in this, and when there is any chance for recovery you will not be disappointed.

It often occurs in cases of dropsy that the heart action is impaired. The blood is accordingly not supplied rapidly enough, and waste matter accumulates on this account. Here again direct action toward the organ itself is wrong, the proper thing being to remove the water as easily as possible, as it is itself a heart poison.

In the treatment of this disease, as well as in all others, the question of diet presents itself. That which is most easily converted into rich blood is certainly the best. All club members know from former lectures what this is. It often occurs, however, in cases of this kind that a constant thirst is felt, in which event place two drops of strong acetic acid or lemon juice in each cupful of water taken. Whole-wheat foods should compose the principal part of the diet.

CLUB NOTES.

Bellflower.—Dr. D. H. Reeder, Laporte, Ind. Dear Doctor: I have read in this paper of your good advice and thought I would write you and ask for some advice also. Have always from a child had the best of hearing, although about 30 years ago in coming west I got well filled with ague, bringing on a ringing and hissing noise in them; yet not dulling sounds or not to speak of, until about eight years ago, when I had a catarrhal gripe. Since then there has been a dullness of hearing, but not bad. But this winter I had another spell and my hearing is much worse and to-day I can hear most every noise imaginable in them, even the chirping of birds. However, I can hear the clock tick and previous to this spell could hear it even in the next room. There is a dull feeling in my ears, or fullness. I dread the thought of being entirely deaf. I shall look anxiously for an answer from you, for which I thank you in advance. Respectfully, F. E.

I am inclined to disagree with you as to the cause of the ringing in your head. The ague did not cause it, but, rather, the quinine which you in all probability took to cure the ague.

This drug is, I presume, used more than any other, and I consider it entirely unnecessary. It is a dangerous drug, and so much better and certain results can be derived by the simple method of the Home Health Club that I hope it may soon pass out of use among my readers. I think that the trouble in your case, while serious, can be overcome, but not in a day, nor a week. I have written you fully in regard to the home treatment which you should use which I trust will prove all and more than you anticipate. I would like to go into details here, but it would take all of my space, and I must consider others.

All readers of this publication are at liberty to inquire for any information pertaining to the subject of health. Address all communications to the Home Health Club or Dr. David H. Reeder, Laporte, Ind., giving name and address in full and at least four cents in postage.

Case of Absent-Mindedness.—A policeman, going his rounds in the early morning, in Bath, England, saw a clock standing on the doorstep of a house. He rang the bell and found that the occupant had taken the milk pail up to his bedroom, leaving the clock where he had intended to put the pail.

Fire in Kimberly Plant at Neenah, Wis., Causes Loss of $300,000.

Neenah, Wis., March 8.—Fire in the Neenah Paper Mill company's plant Wednesday caused a loss estimated at $300,000, covered by insurance. A drying machine in a loft, valued at $50,000, was wrecked, and many bales and rolls of stock together with two paper machines, were damaged by water. The plant was owned by John A. Kimberly.
